Snapshots

from the class of 2010

Linfield College said farewell to 525 students at its 2010 spring commencement

Humanitarian physician Jill Seaman, one of Time Magazine's 1997 Heroes of Medicine, presented the commencement address, followed by departmental receptions in the Oak Grove. The baccalaureate ceremony took place on the McMinnville Campus and featured The Reverend Stephan Ross, pastor of the McMinnville United Methodist Church and co-pastor of the McMinnville Cooperative Ministries, who offered the baccalaureate speech, "Life Interrupted."

Seaman received an honorary degree for her dedication and commitment to delivering and improving treatment for infectious diseases endemic to southern Sudan.

Three professors and a long-time dean were awarded emeritus status on their retirements: Ken Ericksen, professor emeritus of English; Barbara May, professor emerita of nursing; Donna Routh, professor emerita of nursing; and Dave Hansen, dean emeritus, student services. Hansen retired as dean but will continue to teach economics. For more photos go to: www.linfield.edu/photogallery.
