Preserving Linfield's Character

The Hambys have been affiliated with Linfield for more than 60 years as students, athlete, alumni, parents and faculty. Drannan taught physics, chemistry and Outdoor Environmental Studies in the Cascades.

"Linfield College and its people played a significant part in our lives and the lives of our children, both graduates.

"We want others to be able to go to a college where one can be a football player, chemistry major and a Fulbright scholar. We want Linfield to continue to be a place where faculty are scholars but also involved in their community; a place where people think an education is about more than making money; and a place where loyalty to purpose and community are important.

"We give back to the college because of what it did for our family, and because we want others to have the opportunities we had there – to learn how to live better. This is why we made the decision to include a gift to Linfield in our wills."

– Drannan and Bev (Reinhart) Hamby '55 and '54
