Formats for Data Management Plans

To assist grant applicants in preparing their data management plans, we provide the following information about digital file formats and the ability to use those formats for preservation or to migrate them forward to future file formats. (We thank our colleagues at Willamette University for providing much of this framework.) We have identified three tiers of support:

Tier 1: Our highest level of support, for preservation and future migration. Formats are recognized, and we believe that bitstreams of these formats can be migrated to future formats, if necessary, to ensure ongoing usability.

Tier 2: Our intermediate level of support, for preservation as-is. Formats are recognized, usually proprietary, and can be preserved as-is to allow retrieval, but future usability is not guaranteed.

Tier 3: Our lowest level of support. Formats may be unrecognized. We may attempt to preserve the bitstream as-is to allow for future retrieval, but future retrieval and usability are not guaranteed.

Assistance in converting from lower tiers to higher tiers is available. Contact the DigitalCommons Coordinator for additional information. You may also wish to refer to our Digitization Standards for DigitalCommons@Linfield.

The list of MIME types is not exhaustive, so contact the DigitalCommons Coordinator if you have questions about a MIME type that is not listed here. Please note that not all extensions in use for a particular file format may be indicated.
