

2016

On Being Called Jorge

José Angel Araguz
Linfield College, jaraguz@linfield.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.linfield.edu/englfac_pubs

Part of the Poetry Commons

DigitalCommons@Linfield Citation

Araguz, José Angel, "On Being Called Jorge" (2016). Faculty Publications. Published Version. Submission 35.

https://digitalcommons.linfield.edu/englfac_pubs/35

This Published Version is protected by copyright and/or related rights. It is brought to you for free via open access, courtesy of DigitalCommons@Linfield, with permission from the rights-holder(s). Your use of this Published Version must comply with the Terms of Use for material posted in DigitalCommons@Linfield, or with other stated terms (such as a Creative Commons license) indicated in the record and/or on the work itself. For more information, or if you have questions about permitted uses, please contact digitalcommons@linfield.edu.

On Being Called Jorge

by José Angel Araguz

I imagine a city where names, like taxis, are interchangeable,
a place where Jorge, Juan, and Javier, and every other man I am pass each other on the street and smile, aware that they are one.
I see it for myself: Jorge in a café crying, Juan handing him a tissue, Javier slamming his book, asking them to keep it down.
Tomorrow, you can be Jorge. Tomorrow, you can be Juan, Javier—whoever you think I am. Tonight, I am you blindly in love with what's in a name.