Class spirit, attendance honored

Classmates from 1958 rallied together to win two new alumni awards. The class of 1958 won both the Class Spirit award, recognizing the class with the highest percentage of giving during 2008, and the Class Act award for having the highest attendance at Homecoming. Special recognition goes to the class of 1988, which donated the most money. Ignite your own class and be one of next year's winners.

Network with Portland Wildcats

Expand your professional network, Wildcat style. Join the Linfield Professionals Network, organized by Sabrina (Hendricks) Park '97, founder and owner of Intrinsic Design, a full service interior design firm in NW Portland. Interested professionals will gather monthly for a social hour hosted by Portland-area alumni. Bring your business cards and come prepared to promote yourself or your business while socializing with fellow Wildcats.

The first gathering will be held Thursday, March 19, at 6 p.m. at Intrinsic Design. To learn more or to host a future gathering, visit www.support.linfield.edu/network.

Linfield alumni are everywhere

My family just returned from a trip to the San Diego area, where it became clear to me that Linfield alumni truly are everywhere. On the day of our departure, right after we boarded a shuttle to the Portland terminal, another early morning traveler spied my husband's Linfield sweatshirt and asked him if he had attended Linfield. My husband, an Oregon Stater (yes, I married outside the faith), gave his usual reply, "I didn't, but my wife did." The passenger told me that he graduated in the mid-1990s and played football for both Ad Rutschman '54 and Ed Langsdorf. Later that day, as we toured the Midway maritime museum, we heard the greeting "Go Cats" and chatted with an alumnus who graduated in the mid-1980s. Three days later, midway through our return trip, a flight attendant eyed my husband's gear and asked, "Did you attend Linfield?" Turns out our flight attendant was an alumnus from the mid-1970s, and though he studied the sciences, spent much of his time in the theatre. This trip was proof for me that either the world is very small or our alumni network is very large – perhaps a bit of both. My husband may not wear that sweatshirt on our next trip, but you can bet I'll be wearing one. Say hello if you see me – I love catching up with alumni. It's your Linfield – wear it proudly wherever you are.
