A Word of Welcome from the Registrar

It will be my privilege today to meet each student as he comes to enroll. None are more welcome than those who have registered before. And I want to thank the scores of former students who this summer have boosted so loyally for "Old Mac" and have shown so many kindnesses to me out in the field, scouting for new boosters. It was a great joy for me to be in your own homes and your places of business and your churches, to strike the aluminum trail and to receive letters as to your summer experiences and new plans for the fall. I don't know how I could have been treated more royally.

Many of the new students are from sections of our big empire that I could not visit, but they will take my word that they are now among friends. Ask professors and fellow students for any information that you desire. There is no snobbery here; or if there seems to be, it will soon be rubbed off, for the McMinnville spirit will soon put everybody "just naturally into the swing of things." The fellow who "makes good" is a prince here, whether he works his way or rolls in wealth.

And it is with peculiar pleasure that I greet the new students whom I found this summer in the kitchen, the store, the office, the ranch, the barn-yard, the pulpit, the parlor, the draw-bridge, the saw-mill, the picnic ground, the porch party, the railroad station, the home of your best girl, the religious convention, the street-corner, the restaurant, the Y. M. C. A. Building, the machine shop, the apple orchard, the midst of alfalfa scent and mosquito bites, the home of sorrow and the house of prayer. If I don't recognize you instantly when you come to my desk, it will be mostly the fault of my poor memory—though perhaps you will not be costumed just as I saw you last. You are very welcome and you will soon find that the whole faculty means it as heartily as I do. Let us serve you in any way.

The editor wants a word about my campaign and the duties of the Registrar. Well, by the use of steam road, automobile, horse-and-buggy, bicycle, ferry, steamer, electric car, cable car, telephone and telegraph, and (not least of all) "shank's pony," I worked in some little or large fashion fifty-four cities and towns in Southern Idaho, Eastern Oregon, Portland, West Washington, East Washington and Northern Idaho. Other important regions had to be omitted, for the summer was too short, and only one man was in the whole field.

All this was interspersed with and followed by an almost endless correspondence to scores of other towns, while for months previous to June letters and circulars galore and catalogues and other printed matter poured forth from the two college offices. It could not have been done without the neat, rapid work of our efficient and accommodating office stenographer, Miss Margaret Maun.

Professor VanOsdel has been a most resourceful and willing helper, especially in the locating of students for room and board. And Doctor Riley has been "on the job" every week, planning and co-operating and corresponding and advertising. The most credit of all belongs to Mrs. Boughton, who, all alone with three children, has held the fort at home, while I have been out on the road. And who is there that has not been a friend in this campaign? And how the reputation of this great little college is spreading!

During the college year it is the business of the registrar to determine the standing of students as to credits, to conduct the work of Registration Day, to act as chairman of the faculty committee on courses and substitutions, to preserve the records and render statements of credit, to conduct a varied correspondence with old and new students, other colleges, business concerns, etc. In recent years Prof. Payne has generously afforded relief in the office work by acting as recorder, entering upon the ledger sheets the teachers' reports of grades, and mailing grade reports to the parents of the commercial and preparatory students.

On Registration Day I assign to each student one of the professors as his adviser. You should see him about your courses and your college life in general and in particular. In this way you will get better and prompter service than if you always try to see the president or dean or registrar. Be sure to get a hand-book when you register. This gives the college rules and much additional interesting information. If you have not found a room yet, see Prof. Van Osdel. If you want work, ask Mr. Rolla McClure, of the Y. M. C. A. employment committee, and watch the bulletin board.

Complete your registration on Wednesday; note the lesson assignments on the bulletin board; get all your books (most of them are at the Y. M. C. A. book-store) on the main floor of the main building; on Thursday with every lesson prepared report at every class WITH YOUR CARD STUB. No chapel on Wednesday; be sure to be there, however, at 11:15 on Thursday.

You'll soon be so busy that you'll forget to be home-sick. Remember, you are among friends.

FRED G. BOUGHTON,
Registrar and Student Secretary.

Hello! Glad to See You!

Here we are again at "Old Mac." It seems good to be back, doesn't it? Here are the old familiar scenes and the old friends. It is just like coming home after—say three years. And we would rather be coming back to McMinnville than to be going anywhere else in the world.

We register today; tomorrow we shall be yelling to old yells and boning on the old studies as tho we had never been away. Too bad that there are realities in life, and we cannot spend more than a day or two in "coming back."

The Review herewith grabs your right hand and gives it a mighty shake. If you are a new student this year, we are glad to know you. This opening sheet is our introduction to you. It is our little way of getting acquainted. You will like us better all the time. By the way, are you looking for a roommate, a good, jolly, talkative, silent one? The Review is all that and then some. Besides you can live three in a room with our college paper.

Managerial

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for our college people to tighten about them again bands which have previously connected them with one another, and to proclaim among the institutions of the earth our importance as a College, this station demands that we should declare the causes which impell us to this timely admonition.

We hold these truths to be self evident: that all students should subscribe for The Review; that they should boost for The Review; that as a result of this The Review will be the predominating College paper of the Pacific Coast. That to secure this wide circulation of our esteemed paper, it is the privilege as well as the right of our students to patronize the merchants who by their advertising in our paper constitute to a marked degree our success. Experience has shown that mankind, more explicitly merchants, are disposed to look kindly on those students who buy, if they mention the fact that their purchase is the result of seeing an Ad in The Review. I therefore, the manager of the McMinnville College Review, appealing to the supreme intelligence and college spirit of the students, do in the name and authority of my convictions, solemnly declare that for the year of 1913-14 these aforesaid facts should be properly considered and adhered to.

And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the hearty co-operation of the students, I finally crave your firm allegiance to the previously mentioned facts, which are the prime factors toward making The Review the best college paper on the Coast.

ALVIN TIPTON.

Great Year Ahoj!

This is the fifty-sixth year of McMinnville College. It promises to be the best ever. Here we are with a better faculty and a greater student body, and, in the near future, the end of a successful campaign for a $300,000 endowment. It seems, truly, that this is to be the greatest year McMinnville has ever known.

Just Folks

When you come to this college, you get mixed up with a lot of folks, just folks. Of course they are better folks than you usually run across elsewhere, but again we say they are "just folks." They do not hail from the homes of the idle rich nor from the haunts of the higher-ups. They may have been here a year longer than you have, and they may know better now than to wear a sky-blue shirt with a wing collar; but in the long run each of these folks has a heart like yours and it pumps red blood much as yours does.

Please do not be afraid of us. We are as eager to know you and to like you as you are to know us. Get acquainted. Ask the fellow next to you whatever you want to know, whether it be the location of "Prof. Baldy's classroom" or the proper way to escort someone down Lover's Lane. Ask, learn, and be happy. Say "Hello" to the fellows, greet the Professors with the military salute, and lift your hat to all others. These are the "ropes" of McMinnville College.

About The Review

It costs $1.00 a year. The Review is published twice-a-month during the college year with a large pictorial edition at Commencement time. The Review is not a high school monthly, but a college newspaper. It is your paper. Write for it, boost for it, subscribe for it, send it home. Count this a part of your college life. The Review is your friend. Befriend it.

This edition of The Review is special and is put out at our expense as a matter of getting known. The regular numbers of the paper contain eight to twelve newspaper pages of college news. The write-ups are not two weeks dead before you read them. The work is done on the Telephone-Register linotype. Published last night; you read it this morning.

Mission Study

Do not fail to sign up for the Y. M. C. A.-Y. W. C. A. Mission Study Course. This class of fifty or more usually meets on Monday evenings, and is taught by Professor Boughton. The subject this fall is "South American Problems." Meet the best people in college in these interesting weekly classes.

Take It From Me

Estimate your expenses for the year. In that estimate put down $3.00 for good times. Invest that $3.00 in a Lyceum Course ticket because:

1. You will enjoy six wholesome, first-class entertainments.
2. The Lyceum Course has practically the only first-class entertainments in town during the winter.
3. Your money goes to help the McMinnville College Associated Student Body.
4. Half of your life will be lost if you miss the College number on the course.

J. ALLAN JEFFERY,
General Manager.

Matrimonial Surprises

W. Lester Adams and Elizabeth Jack were married August 2nd. Here's happiness and long life for little "Jeff."

Vilbert Hiddleson and Mamie Scott were married this summer. Both are former students.

R. H. B. Wilson, one of the most prominent of the older students, was married to Alice Wehring, Sept. 2.

Elda Grames and Roy Wood were married in August.

Corwin J. McKee recently met his fate in Boise, Idaho.

John T. Owens ("Jack") and Elta Clark were married at the home of Lloyd Tilbury, Portland.

J. Hunter Howard and Nancy Polard were married Sept. 1.

Mary H. Stockton and Edgar L. Norwell were married at Adams on June 19th.

Paul Blackstone and Opal Miller were joined in marriage at Newberg Aug. 20.

Dr. Leroy Petersen and Emma Kretzschmar were married June 3. A wedding trip to Europe followed.

Bert Miller is to be married today. Floyd Culver and Elva Hibbs will marry September 30.

October 1 is the wedding day of Gilbert Tilbury and Eva Little.

Coming to McMinnville

Among the many families moving to McMinnville for the college year are these:

Mr. and Mrs. Showalter, who will live in the Arthur Blackstone house. Lovegren's, in the Thurber house.

Rev. J. F. Day. Owen Day is an old student here.

Mrs. Middleton and daughter from Cambridge, Idaho.

Mrs. Thompson from Ashland.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunlop from Centralia.

Mrs. W. W. Amburn, Portland, who has the Fink cottage.

Mrs. Richardson from Marshfield, South B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Cochran from Brownsville will occupy Mrs. Hanscom's house, the I. O. M. Fraternity house.

Mrs. U. M. Over from Idaho has rented the J. W. Cook residence.

Mrs. W. I. Worthim of Spokane is here with her son, and has rooms at Chandler's.

Personals

Prof. Kyle, once before a member of our faculty, will occupy the chair of biology and geology this year

Prof. Larsell is attending Northwestern University at Evanston, Wis.

We suppose the reason Allan struck town so soon was because he was simply "Carried" back.

"Bob" says it is pleasant to get past the stage of being teased.

Prof. John F. Mason of McMinnville high school crawled inside a combined harvester this summer to do some repairing and went to sleep.

It would be interesting to note all the brothers and sisters and cousins and-so-forth that came back with us this year.

Which did you see first, Breuning or the Hat.

The students will be sorry to hear of the death this summer of Mrs. J. Wilson Cook, who for fifteen years, has kept her home open to students.

Be sure to tell Hamblin & Wheeler that you saw their ad. They will treat you right.

What do you know about the basketball outlook? With all of last year's team back and such new men as Simpson, Bishop, Douglass and Blackwell, we predict another year of victories. It looks like better times for baseball too, with "Dug" in the box.

Miss Augusta Stockton, Eleanor's sister, came in Tuesday evening and will register today.

Prof. and Mrs. Payne spent a real vacation this summer on the Sound.

Alvin Tipton drops the recreation of handling logs for the more arduous duty of Review Manager.

Lester Owens will not return till Spring.

Celas Holbrooke and Sidney Happersett are urging wiping the rust from the college press. It looks as tho more prosperous times are ahead.

Carrie McKee will not resume her college work until next term.

Allan Jeffery will register in January.

Ray Culver has been doing evangelistic singing at Wenatchee the last few weeks.

"Ducky" is back again and figures on winning the Alice Schmidt prize this year.

Luther Taylor sold pills for Rogers' Bros. all summer.

Hugh and Ruth Dowd are keeping house in a residence back of the college. Their parents are coming later.

Earnest Day drifted in with Tuesday's breezes. He said he couldn't but he did.

"Bob" has been here a week inoculating the shelves of the book store with condensed knowledge.

"Sam" refused to be a graduate of a high school that gave a senior dance. So the dance was called off. That freshman is not so green as he looks.

Wendell Miller is an Assistant Secretary in Y. M. C. A. work at Hoquiam, Wash.

"Art" Schoenberger has been high mogul of the campus all summer.

Prof. Frerichs attended the U. of W. this summer.

The last news of O. J. Marsh came from Chicago, where he had stopped on his way to the Atlantic shore. Our friend expects to visit Princeton, Harvard and Brown before deciding where he will spend the next few years.

It is with more than ordinary regret that we note the absence of Annabel Wood. Because of her health Annabel will spend the winter in Everett, Wash. Alice is there with her in attendance at the high school. We shall greatly miss these loyal spirits.

Perhaps few students have won more friends while in our midst than Rufino Tugbang. To his sorrow as well as our own, "Tug" will spend this winter in Portland, by day going to Lincoln high and by night acting as bell boy in the Chesterbury hotel.

In August Truman Northup returned home from his sojourn in Mexico and California. He has since gone into business in Portland.

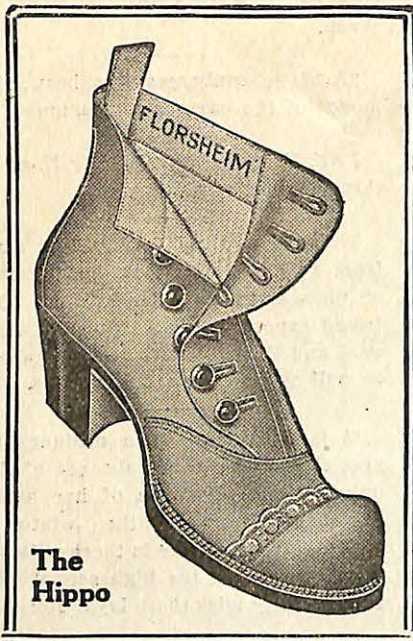

Among other smiling faces that will be missed might be mentioned those of Monta Smithson and Hubert Reynolds. This week the boys expect to begin their winter's struggle for wealth in the mines of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

Parsons & Hendricks are O. K. Did you read their ad?

To the delight of his friends in both college and town our good friend John Mason will be near his old haunts again. Next week he will begin his work as head of the English department in the McMinnville high school.

Nellie Reynolds also will not be with us this year. All summer she kept hoping that Oregon air would infuse renewed strength into her system but a week ago she concluded Colorado was better so returned home to rest for a year. We shall hope to see her among us a year or two later.

Among former students who are happy to return as are all loyal sons of Old Mac, we greet Ben Favell of Ashland and Sam Simpson of Corn-ing, Calif.
