STUDENT FINANCES ABLY DISCUSSED

PROF. FRERICHS OUTLINES
PLAN TO AID STUDENTS

Business Men of City Play Important
Part in Student Money Matters

Last Thursday Prof. Frerichs gave the student body a real jolt on the financial question. The subject of his address was "Making Ends Meet" a very fitting subject at the opening of the year. The student money question is an exceedingly complex problem but Prof. Frerichs has given the situation detailed study and knows whereof he speaks when he says:

"Never spend your last penny. One of the first things a student should do when he comes to college is to make out a budget of expenses. In doing this he should carefully check up his resources in which should be included his summer's wages, all possible sources of income during the year, and to this he should add, courage and faith to face the future. His budget of expenses should include tuition, board, room, laundry, books, student activities, "others," and incidentals. If the student finds that his expenses exceed his resources and income there is only one of two things to be done. Increase the income or pare down the expenses.

The student should keep an accurate cash account and should make frequent balances. He should study the list of expenses between the balances to be sure that he has a favorable balance and that he is getting value received for his money.

One of the important things is to avoid financial obligations, unless you are sure you can meet those obligations. It is better to forego pleasure than to lose friends and reputation. The merchants of our city are extremely lenient and often favor students to the extent that students cannot meet the obligations. Do not yield to the temptation of going into debt.

If you find it impossible to avoid debt pay that bill at the earliest possible moment or make arrangements with the merchant to pay it at a later date.

When the business men have favored you, do not fail to return the favor and play square with them. They are exceedingly courteous to all and often so to those who do not deserve such courtesy. However, they make a distinction between the honorable men and those who are dishonest. They do not object to giving credit to students but they do object to getting stung.

When you fail to meet your obligations the reflection is not on the business man but on the student, and it should not be forgotten that the use of money has a tremendous reflection

FROSH STAGE BIG MIXER FOR SOPHS

The Green Skull Cap and the Black
Derby Unite in Happy
Jollification

The seemingly impossible has happened. For the first time in the history of the college the Frosh and Sophs forgot their rivalry and enjoyed together a "real mixer." No other suitable place being available for so large a gathering the Frosh entertained their guests in the basement parlors of the Baptist church.

The color scheme was an artistic combination of the vivid green interwoven with the cardinal and gray of '23. Near the front of the room was a large placard in combination colors bearing the word "Comrades," and on either side were hung respectively a green cap and a black derby.

The group system was employed in the general mixing. Four groups representing McMinnville, Yale, Harvard, and Princeton, staged a real track meet which afforded some "thrillers" and brought forth several clever yells and songs.

Other features of the program were readings by the Misses Bones, Fesler, and Pentley, and a piano solo by Miss Hubble. Later Miss Irene Miller delighted her audience by rendering two vocal solos in her usual pleasing way. The possibility of a happy future was vividly presented to the Sophs in pantomime which centered about a lover's troubles in wooing the maiden of his choice. Mr. Fielder added spice to the program with clever guitar selections.

To appease the appetites of the hungry mixers and to securely seal in bonded friendship the rivalry of the two classes, the Frosh served a most delicious luncheon. The Sophs think the wearers of the green a most congenial and likeable bunch, and have expressed their appreciation of the jolly mixer.

JUNIORS DON NOBBY HEADGEAR

Cords Again Appear On Campus

The home of Miss Ruth O'Keefe was the scene of a delightful evening's entertainment for twenty-two learned members of the class of '22, on Friday night. Customarily a week-end night is given over to frivolity but not so with the staid Juniors for each girl appeared with a working kit and each boy with a mysterious parcel clasped firmly under his arm. After lengthy discussions, such as only Juniors are capable of indulging in, and after much gazing into mirrors the location of the traditional emblem of the mighty Junior class was determined; needles flew and soon the triumphant '22 appeared on caps of blue and gold and on the cords.

Thus the pulling of thread combined with the pulling of taffy, put every Junior in high spirits for their chapel appearance on Monday. Because of the tailor's delay in completing the "cords" and the slowness of shipment from the Parisien hat shop, Juniors have been later in displaying class colors than the "Frosh" with their verdant top-knots and the "Sophs" with their tin derbies. But yesterday with all the gusto of a conquering army the Juniors took possession of the platform and with one grand blow awoke the slumbering infants and even stirred dim corners in the dusty attic of our noble Seniors. With the fact the enthusiasm of the class of '22 has not diminished nor shall it ever perish from the campus. The president, Minnie Larson, with all the dignity of her honored position eulogized her loyal subjects with the glowing words of a famous orator. So the "cords" are with us again and twenty-four strong they are backing the true spirit of "Mac" and let us hope that what they have done here, shall not have been in vain, but shall add to the traditions of many jolly Juniors in the future generation.

SPLENDID LYCEUM COURSE COMING

LEADING ARTISTS ON ELLISON-
WHITE BUREAU TO APPEAR

Manager Confident That Numbers
Will Please

The Lyceum Course has long held a prominent place in the winter schedule of the residents of the city and the students of the college. The course for the season 1920-21 has been carefully selected and promises to be one of the best balanced and highest type courses yet presented. No class of entertainment surpasses the Lyceum for inspiration, instruction, and education.

Five numbers will be presented. The first will be "The Temple Choir" consisting of five artists who bring back the delightful old melodies. The mixed quartet is a special feature giving a varied program of selection and readings.

Robert Parker Miles comes as a Dramatic lecturer. Mr. Miles has brought about great reforms in New York and has traveled throughout Europe interviewing prominent men such as Gladstone, Balfour, Bismark, President Carnot, King Edward, and others.

The Windsor Glee Quartet, every one of whom is an artist, presents an entertainment of thrilling solos and harmonious quartets. Evan Lloyd, tenor robusto, sings the "coster-monger" songs and other costumed numbers with remarkable artistry.

Lincoln McConnell, "The Guy that Delivers the Goods," has for a quarter of a century been lecturing in America. He is booked so far ahead now that he will have no vacation for the next ten years. Ralph Parlette says of him: "He's a top-notch in platform work." Fortunately Linc. McConnell will appear in McMinnville this season.

The Merry Rondoliers give an original high speed pep program that pleases every one. They come with an entertainment guaranteed to make a wooden Indian sing. It's Lyceum's Liveliest—an yet one of the finest and cleanest entertainments of the platform.

This year the popular priced tickets are $3.50 and $3.00 including war tax. The following is a schedule of the course:

The Temple Choir	Oct. 20
Robert Parker Miles	Jan. 14
Windsor Glee Quartet	Feb. 3
Lincoln McConnell	Feb. 9
The Rondoliers	April 28

At the regular meeting of the Associated Students on Monday an amendment to the By-Laws was passed which put the paper on a more sound financial basis.

Every One Can Have Sheet—Student Body Tickets Not Necessary

People all over the northwest are going to read about McMinnville College this year. Many students have subscribed for the Review to be sent to their homes or friends. They prefer to have the Review mailed away by the paper staff rather than to have to do it themselves. This gives them an opportunity to keep their own papers and at the same time saves the time, and the postage wasted when the student himself mails the paper.

The parents of a number of the students have asked that the Reviews be sent home. They enjoy reading them and find them a welcome supplement to the letters they receive.

Some students who are unable to pay the five dollars for an Associated Student ticket subscribe for the Review and get it each week for themselves. This is much cheaper for them than buying the weekly copy and at the same time gives one of the greatest attractions offered by the more expensive tickets.

The subscription price of the paper this year has been fixed at $1.50 which includes cost of mailing. Subscriptions are being taken by the Review Manager and at the Bookstore.

A CURRENT QUESTION

Every year about this time the same old question arises in the life of every student. Just how that question shall be settled must be left to each individual that is perplexed. As has happened this last week the Lyceum Manager made his annual appearance and presented the course to the students. He made the numbers and the artists seem as attractive as possible in order that a large number will purchase season tickets.

Several years ago the Lyceum Course was handled by a committee of business men. They found it impossible to continue in that capacity and expressed a desire that the students of the college assume that responsibility as a regular student body activity. This the students agreed to do and proceeded to select the numbers of the course and to assume the financial responsibility. To date no financial loss has been experienced but each year the manager almost turns grayheaded worrying over the outcome and finds after his liabilities have been met that it requires a compound microscope to see the net proceeds.

This week each student is asking himself the old question "Can I afford to get a ticket?" The students fail to realize that the Lyceum is a student activity and should be supported the same as oratory, debate, basketball, baseball, or any other student activity. The course has always been worth the price of the tickets, but this year the numbers are exceptionally good and the question that ought to be uppermost in the mind of each student is "Can I afford not to buy a ticket?"

No one can afford to miss the educating and elevating influence of the coming entertainments. It would be much better for the careful and conscientious spender and for the careless and unscrupulous spender to each deny himself some of the less helpful amusements and invests his money in the things worth while, especially those things that would be an asset to any man's culture. Think it over and then line up with those who recognize the benefits derived from the wholesome and elevating influences of the Lyceum Course.

HIGHSKULITUS

An old disease has broken out in college. It is a fall malady which runs its course for a few weeks every year. Highskulitus is with us again "That's what we did in High" or "We didn't do it that way in High School" is frequently heard on the campus.

The High plays an important part in the life of the child but when the student comes to college it is supposed that he is finished with it and is ready for something new. Still many cling to the ideas of their childhood and think them better than the things they find at college. They should squeeze the high school out of the sponge inside their boney extremities and prepare to absorb something new.

Of course the malady is only an indication of a decided greenness on the part of the afflicted one. It is nothing to worry over but the sooner the childish things are put away the greater will be the growth.

TIMELY TOPICS DISCUSSED IN CHAPEL

Various Phases of College Life and College Problems Presented From Platform

Chapel services this year are a great improvement over former years. Instead of each professor leading chapel on any subject that occurred to him, as has been the custom previously, this year there is a definite assignment of topics. This arrangement has been the occasion for many interesting services. Different phases of College life are taken up and are handled in such a way as to benefit the student.

Such topics as college athletics, the relationship of the student to the Christian church, fraternity life and its importance in college life, student financial problems, and other interesting subjects have been discussed. Fridays are devoted to musical programs and song rallies. "Mother" Potter has made them exceedingly interesting and enjoyable.

G. M. C. COUNCIL ELECTS

Plans Being Formulated For All-College Mix

The vacancies on the G. M. C. Council have been filled and the work for the year has begun in earnest. Elizabeth Pangborn, the senior representative, was elected president of the council. Jake Manley is the junior representative and Beth Stewart is the other new member by virtue of her position as vice-president of the student body.

The all-college mix is to be held on the campus next Saturday, Oct. 16. The council wishes that every one would appear on the grounds at 5:30 o'clock with cup and spoon. Supper will be served at 6:00 p. m. cafeteria style under the old oak.

The song contest and other numbers of the program will be held in the grove which is to be illuminated by a bonfire furnished by the Frosh.

McMinnville College Students Are Foreign Mission Candidates

New York, Oct. 5.—Two graduates of McMinnville college, McMinnville, Or., were among six candidates for foreign mission service to be appointed at a meeting Monday of the board of managers of the American Baptist Foreign Mission society. They were W. Henry Bueermann of Newark, N. J., McMinnville, '17, and later of the University of Oregon medical school, and Miss Gladys Mabel Champion, formerly of White Plains, N. Y.

Mr. Bueerman is now completing a course at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, this city.

SOPHS EAT WAFFLES

The basement of the Riley home was the rendezvous of the Sophs Tuesday evening, where they devoured several stacks of crisp and tempting waffles. Everyone ate his fill.

The program consisted of such games as all could enjoy and each Soph entered heartily into the fun of the evening.

The class was especially glad to have Miss Erickson present as chaperone—and to entertain Dewey Maxwell, one of the live wires of the Senior class.

Society

The Kappa Alpha Phi fraternity met Saturday evening at the home of Beth and Vivian Stewart. Needless to say a most enjoyable evening was spent as the Stewart sisters are royal hostesses. Next week the Fraternity is to be entertained at the country home of Miss Pebble Brixey.

The Delta Psi Delta fraternity held its weekly meeting at the ancient tower. A lively spirit of good fellowship and wit characterized the evening.

The Phi Epsilon fraternity met at their royal hall Friday evening before the various social functions of the classes and indulged to an extensive degree in a feast of wit and a flow of soul. Immediately following the business meeting the Fraternity adjourned to attend class functions.

The Alpha Gamma Nu fraternity met with Bob Meddaugh and Jack Crump Saturday evening. After transacting the business of the Fraternity the hosts brought forth the pies and then eats were in order.

The Iota Omega Mu fraternity convened at the usual place of meeting at 7:30 Saturday evening. Every faithful brother was in his appointed place as he later proved physically, mentally and spiritually. Peppy and full of wit were the proofs thereof, leaving all in a happy frame of mind as they assembled to their respective places of abode.

The Zeta Chi fraternity initiated Miss Ruth Roy into full-fledged membership Saturday evening in the den of the White House. Miss Roy is a popular member of the Junior class and an advanced student in the conservatory. The Fraternity gladly announces her as a member.

CLASS OF '21 COMPILES

FINAL BUDGET

They have long been hankering after one of their good old class picnics around a bon-fire on the river bank, but the elements not sympathizing with their design have done all in their power to frustrate that fond hope. They just naturally decided to prove to themselves and the world that they could have a good time in spite of the hardhearted weather.

On Friday evening with malice aforethought every senior, minus one or two, perambulated stealthily to the home of Charles Davis and Jose Petran for to put over a joke on the weather man.

Having accumulated the wisdom that sees the necessity of putting duty before pleasure, they first of all, conscientiously supported president Davis in his frantic efforts to transact important but discouraging business. Theoretically and as Prof. Frerichs says, budgets are a very good and very necessary phenomena, but practically, a senior budget, at least, is not a very enthusiastic and cheer-producing example.

Glad they were to obliterate the problems of frenzied finance and other performances with the more pleasurable occupation of playing Rook. They devoted all the powers of keen concentration and weighty deliberation upon the cards in hand with mighty results, some in realms above ground, others in the hole.

At length, to build up their expended brain cells, expended skill and wit they descended to the more practical and frivolous plane of demolishing magnitudinous compilations of ice-cream and cake.
