ORATORY--DEBATE PROSPECTS BRIGHT

McMINNVILLE TO MAKE SPECIAL
EFFORT WIN STATE CONTEST

Debate Club Organized

McMinnville College has taken on new enthusiasm in oratory and debate. Professor Jewell, head of the department in public speaking, will devote much of his time to the training of orators and debaters to represent the institution in intercollegiate contests.

Professor Gardiner, head of the department of English, and Professor Jewell have offered two prizes of ten and five dollars, to the two best orations from the Freshmen class. Already this proposition has met with hearty response and at least thirty Freshmen have signified their intentions of entering the oratorical contest. Two evenings will be devoted to the delivery of these orations.

The Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors will also have respective evenings for their try outs. As a result of these preliminary contests, from the four college classes the six best will enter a final contest and the winner of this contest will represent the college in the State Inter-collegiate contest which will be held this year at Eugene Bible University, Eugene.

This plan of preliminary tryouts and class contests will mean that at least fifty people will participate and as a result the very best orator will represent the institution at Eugene. Competent judges will be selected to judge the orations on the basis of composition, thought and delivery.

A similar method of class tryouts will be conducted for the purpose of selecting the debate teams. The debating club has for its purpose the fostering and encouraging of debate. This club has already started and definite plans are under way to help Mac put out winning teams.

Last year triangle debates were held with Pacific University and Willamette University. Willamette has already written for a debate with Mac as soon as arrangement can be completed. There will be two teams this year; a men's team and women's team of six members each.

Professor Jewell, who will coach the teams, is confident that by good hard work McMinnville college can bring home the bacon, and that the college will be put on the map from the stand point of oratory and debate.

Raymond E. Vester, brother of Clifford Vester and a pre-war student in Mac, is manager of the "Oregon Daily Emerald." Vester is a rustler and success will surely crown his work. While in McMinnville he was active in student affairs and devoted much of his time to oratory.

HEAR THEM TOMORROW NIGHT

Resurrect Melodies of Seventeenth Century

Temple Choir, to Be Heard Here Soon, Offers Both Oldest and Newest Songs—A Mixed Quartet of Talented Vocalists.

The Temple Choir is a mixed quartette of high-class vocalists who have had a successful career in lyceum work, because they give an artistic program which is just a little bit different from anything else. As a delightful feature of their program they present along with lighter and classic numbers of the day, several old religious chants and hymns, which were used centuries ago. These ancient melodies have seldom been heard in this country. They are of unusual beauty, however, and are rendered most artistically by the Temple Choir. The announcement of the approaching visit of this company is arousing much interest in local musical circles.

PROF. POINTS OUT STUDENT ERRORS

C. F. Richards Delivers Interesting
Address—Opportune Advice Given

Professor Richards very cleverly portrayed the "Usual Mistakes of Students" in his chapel address last Thursday. Wit and humor mingled with timely advice set the students to thinking when he pointed out the glaring mistakes students so often make.

No student is infallible so his remarks that follow are equally applicable to all. "One of the greatest mistakes a student is guilty of is his failure to make a correct estimate of himself and his powers. So many students show under-estimation of self because they choose the line of least resistance. They hide the best in themselves under a sham of 'horseplay' and are satisfied with a carefree lack of responsibility attitude.

"Some students are afflicted with the 'overestimation malady' and place too much confidence in their ability

DANCING AND SINGING TO BE DEBATING TESTS

Dancing and singing will be two of the requirements of candidates for the debating team of one of the large universities of the Northwest. So the professor of the department told some members of his class in extemporaneous speaking.

The announcement came in the course of a discussion when a student ardently advocated that the football men should receive as many credits for graduation as the debaters. The professor maintained that dancing and singing were essential to effective speaking, and were antidotes to stage fright.

The world rolls on in its frantic whirl while the gaping multitudes await the expounding of just such theories, and then give notoriety to the one who pounds and expounds. However, history does not record that Cicero or his contemporaries or even the orators or debaters of later periods were either vocalists or dancing artists.

ALL-COLLEGE MIX GRAND SUCCESS

FROSH AND SOPHS TIE FOR HONORS
IN SONG CONTEST

Novel Group System Introduced

The annual All-College mix was held in the city auditorium Saturday night, under the auspices of the Greater McMinnville Club.

The affair was in the nature of a picnic, but owing to the weather conditions the committee in charge had to change their plans from an outdoor affair to one limited by four walls and a roof.

The Preps had charge of the programs which they cut out in the shape of a mixing bowl with an excellent recipe for an all-college mix printed on the outside while the inside was given over to the numbers of the program.

The Frosh cleaned up the hall and decorated the stage. The eats were furnished by the three upper classes and came first on the program.

To avoid the hackneyed method of making dates for each number ten group leaders were chosen and the people were grouped for one number by such as the initials of their first or last name the number on their program, while every other number was optional with the crowd such as their favorite pie, favorite automobile or chewing gum. On the number on which it was the individuals choice where they would go for that number the bidding of the group captains for a crowd caused a good deal of excitement and behaved a lot like peanut vendors at a circus.

The numbers on the program were a song from each class and the Prep department. Speeches from the managers of various activities of the school. There were some special numbers by the girls quartette, the boys quartette and a stunt by the preparatory department.

Kenneth Riley, the yell leader, was there on the job with nine rabs and a hip-hip hurrah for every one.

The song contest which was judged by the members of the faculty present was declared by them to be a tie between the Freshmen and Sophomores.

The final number, a speech from Avard Whitman, president of the A. S. M. C., and a song by the male quartette, sent the students home with a feeling of satisfaction and world of praise for the G. M. C.

J. Hugh Pruett, '11, is now instructor in the physics department at University of Oregon. Mr. Pruett did graduate work as a scholarship student at University of Chicago, and has taught for five years in Oregon high schools. He has several large classes and is well liked at the "U."

ADJUSTMENTS

Some one has very aptly said: Living is simply a series of adjustments. This bit of philosophy put in the common vernacular means, that life is a give and take proposition. The person who can adjust himself to his mental, physical and spiritual environment is the person who has learned the secret of life. There are some important things involved in this matter of adjustments.

In order that the individual may fit into the scheme of society and be able to wield an influence he must strive to get the viewpoint of his fellow associate. An untold amount of friction and lack of harmony is traceable to the fact that many students fail to get or even seek for the viewpoint of their associates. Many times a wrong conception is gained of a fellow student because his associates do not understand his motives. His actions are the cause of a great deal of adverse criticism and the student perhaps receives cool treatment.

How much better it would be to try to size up this student's actions looking at it from his viewpoint. He perhaps has perfectly good motives and valid reasons for his conduct. One of the characteristics of a truly educated person is that he has an open mind. He draws his conclusions from the facts and does not approach a question with his mind already made up. Every student should have this as an ideal and put it into practice in dealing with his associates.

It is important to get the viewpoint of the other fellow and after that is obtained to remember that every one must sacrifice something in order that the wheels of society may run smoothly. The student who is determined to conduct himself as he pleases and who insists on having his plans carried out regardless of others, has not learned the secret of living. There are times when compromise is an indication of moral weakness but standing for high principles and downright stubbornness are two different things.

Magnanimity of character is shown by the way an individual conducts himself in society. The student who is built on a large scale is anxious to contribute something to the good of the school and he is willing to make his personal affairs subsidiary. He is willing to change his plans, to serve on a committee and to have his ideas on the subject rejected if there are others that are better. He is living out the principle of give and take. He is fitting into the needs of the institution. He is the kind of student that lend himself to the spirit of the college and who has learned to reduce friction to the minimum.

Four years spent in college is no simply preparation for life. It is life itself. There is no better time to learn the proper respect for personality and to learn the art of adjusting oneself to his environment.

WHAT THINK YOU?

The old gym is being utilized more this year than it has been for several fall seasons. Volley ball is becoming quite popular and will soon take its place among the minor sports of the college. The men of the institution have shown a keen interest in the sport and many are becoming quite expert in handling the ball. Quite a number of the girls are devoting considerable time to this activity and doubtless many more would if the gym was a little more presentable.

It is suggested that the responsible party get busy and organize a renovating squad to put the gym in the most sanitary condition for winter use. The good work should include considerable cleaning and repairing in the shower and dressing rooms or the lower floor.

CONQUEST CLASS BANQUET NOVEMBER 13

The annual banquet of the Conquest class will be held Nov. 13 in the Woodman Hall. An effort is being made by the class to have as many of the old members present as possible and letters are being sent to all those who would be able to come.

The attendance in the class keeps up well this year.

Professor VanOsdel brings a message to the class each Sunday that one cannot well afford to miss.

If you aren't in the class, be sure and get in and be in line for the banquet.

Y. W. C. A.

October 5, the Y. W. meeting proved to be a most interesting one. Several of the girls, who were in costume took part in a pageant representing the world-wide work of the Association. All present were led to realize more fully the great work done by the organization and everyone was given an opportunity to sign a membership card at the close of the meeting. If you have not already done so see Delia Ingram and sign up right away.

October 13. At this meeting the new girls were formally received into membership, taking their places inside the triangle of old members. The meetings this year are full of new ideas and "pep" and those who do not attend are missing things both helpful and interesting.

Many plans are being made to make this a profitable year and there is work for all to do. You are missing a very important part of your college life if you are not present on Wednesdays, at 11:15, in the Y. W. room at Music Hall.

W. L. Hayes to Head Recreational Activities of 6th Army Corps

Willard L. Hayes, '13, formerly first lieutenant at Camp Lewis and at present in civilian life in charge of the recreational work at the former camp under Lieutenant-Colonel A. J. Harris, has been appointed supervisor of recreational activities for the Sixth Army Corps with headquarters at Chicago.

Mr. Hayes was a prominent member of his class and will be remembered as one of McMinnville's best tennis players. While at Camp Lewis he was considered among the best of the court stars there.

His new position is considered a long step upward and many men of the army will be benefited through his services.

to choose for themselves. They overestimate the importance of outside activities and their physical endurance necessary to participate in these activities. Others overestimate their own judgment and are intolerant of the opinions of others. Overestimation of yourself, your powers, and your abilities, defeats your purpose in college.

"The second great mistake that students make is the failure to realize that college life is a 'real life.' Some students waste four years in college by getting by with the minimum and when they are graduates they awaken to the realization that wasting time is wasting life, for the man who just gets by will never get ahead.

In order to avoid these mistakes incorporate the estimate of others and it will help you to maintain your equilibrium."

Perhaps this fall when there seems a strong desire on the part of some to cause a social upheaval in our midst it would be well to remember this line in Alice Duer Miller's book, "The Blue Arch." "Those who feel themselves both able and willing to save the social ship should first be absolutely sure that she is on the rocks."

The Delta Psi Delta fraternity met in weekly session last Friday night, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fairhill. The fraternity was glad to have Dean Northup, Professor Gardiner and Professor Richards on hand to join in the roll call and to help dispose of the pot-luck supper which introduced the evening's frolic.

The Kappa Alpha Phi fraternity enjoyed a slumber party at the home of the Misses Osa and Beth Northup. A pleasant evening was spent together and eleven o'clock came only too soon. The next morning found everyone up bright and early to enjoy a delightful breakfast prepared by the hostess.

The Phi Epsilon fraternity met with Jake Manley on Friday afternoon and evening and had an unusually profitable and enjoyable time at the expense of their new member who is now no doubt a sadder and wiser man. A most excellent supper was served and an example of perfect culinary art which was followed by an able and learned discussion.

The Zeta Chi fraternity was entertained at the home of Miss Ida Miller Friday evening. Several associate members answered roll call and the fraternity was especially glad to have with them Miss Jamie Farmer who is attending Willamette University this year.

The Iota Omega Mu fraternity enjoyed a little diversion from the usual entertainment on Friday evening when they gladly extended the hand of fellowship to Wrex Hickok, their new member. The fraternity also gladly welcomed back Bernard Hansard for another year. The finishing touch of the evening appeared in the form of hot buns, hot dogs, hot coffee and pie.

CONSERVATORY

On Friday, October 8, the following program was given during the chapel period:

"Sweeter as the Years Go By,"....
Violin Solo.....Allan Arnold
"Prayer" from Mascagni...Orchestra
.....Mixed Quartet
"The Peace of God"....Mrs. Warren

On October 15, a genuine old-fashioned "sing" was held. In imagination, at least, the whole student body was seated around a huge bonfire and all entered heartily into the singing of old favorite hymns and several popular songs of today, accompanied by the orchestra. The guitar solo by Mr. Fielder was very appropriate and much appreciated. The closing number, "Dear Old Pal of Mine," was sung by Mrs. Warren. The students joined in the chorus.

The Conservatory Department is glad to announce that Professor Carl Grissen, teacher of violin, will give private lessons in Music Hall each Wednesday. Mr. Grissen teaches in Portland and also in Corvallis. He has studied with some of the best teachers, both in this country and abroad.

"I want reform," yelled the speaker. "I want labor reform, I want temperance reform. I want political reform. I want social reform, I want everything reformed—

"What you want" (from the gallery) "is chloroform."

Old Oregon

When I used to live in Kansas,
I liked the autumn best,
For then the mighty thunder
Was settled down to rest.
For in the springtime season
The demons from on high
Were loosed from every corner,
And scattered in the sky.

The lightning flashed from skyward,
And every little cloud,
Seemed joined with frightful dust-
storms

To make us all a shroud.
The cyclones swept the plains o'er,
The grasshops were a pest,
They ate up most all plant life,
The hot winds took the rest.

But, now in dear old Oregon,
I've cast my little lot,
And it's almost like a heaven,
Is this great garden spot;
For spring is calm and peaceful,
And sweet the ocean breeze;
Each landscape is a picture;
The birds sing in the trees.

And the rain comes down so gently,
What matters though it pour?
It can rain all that it wants to,
And rain and rain some more;
For it has no gust of duststorms,
It has no thunderous bell,
It has no lightning flashes,
As other countries tell.

So, it's Oregon for me, sir,
The land for work or play,
The land of glorious springtime,
Or the time of making hay.
There's ne'er a place that's better,
For this is just ideal.
If to other lands you're roaming,
Back to Oregon, you'll steal.

"Sure," replied the clerk. An instant later an infinitesimal speck of anthracite had been transferred from the tear-laden member to a bit of absorbant cotton on the end of a toothpick.

"So that little thing was causing all the trouble, was it?" exclaimed the relieved sufferer. "Well, how much do I owe you?"
