Features

- 6 LIVING A BETTER LIFE
Once dominated by students bound for seminary, religious studies classrooms are increasingly filling with a different sort of learner.
- 14 GOODBYE CLASSROOM, HELLO RETIREMENT
With a combined 127 years of service, four beloved faculty members share memories and what's kept them at Linfield.
- 16 NOT YOUR TRADITIONAL BOOT CAMP
Accounting can be a grueling major. Over the past 35 years, Mike Jones has guided students with compassion, encouragement, excitement and a dash of humor.
- 20 INSIDE PORTLAND'S THEATRE SCENE

INSIDE LINFIELD MAGAZINE

Religious studies is at the heart of a liberal arts education. In this issue, we explore the study of religion and its impact on how students and alumni live their lives. We salute our baseball national champions and our 661 graduates who heard an inspiring commencement address by Theresa (Stichick) Betancourt '91. We offer examples of dedicated teachers, who seek to encourage and inspire students and to explore new ideas. The Linfield experience continues to thrive – on the athletic field, in the classroom, in the theatre and concert hall, and through alumni connections.
