6 A HEALTHY DOSE OF WELLNESS

Students at the Linfield-Good Samaritan School of Nursing are learning the importance of community-based health, both through on-campus classes and off-campus clinicals.

14 WHY I TEACH

Acclaimed poet Lex Runciman, professor of English since 1992, reflects on teaching and the influence his own instructors have had on his craft.

18 MATH MENTORS

A new grant enabled six Linfield College math students to work side-by-side with six local middle schoolers on a series of science fair projects emphasizing mathematics.

20 SEVEN MONTHS OF SOLITUDE

A wilderness writing residency fueled the creative process for Joe Wilkins, associate professor of English, who spent part of last year at the remote Dutch Henry Homestead on the banks of the Rogue River.

INSIDE LINFIELD MAGAZINE

Linfield nurses are special. With an education grounded in the liberal arts, they delve deeper. Critical thinking and a holistic approach to nursing and health is at the heart of a Linfield nursing education. In this issue, we take a closer look at the community health-based approach built into the curriculum. We also say goodbye and share a few memories from eight professors who retired this year. Learn why one of our celebrated faculty members is a dedicated teacher and get a glimpse of this year's commencement celebration. We share the story of Linfield students who mentor local sixth graders and of an alumna who has leveraged her love of all things Chinese into a career. Even as we celebrate the end of one school year, we look forward to new adventures ahead.
