The cover: Which version did you get? This issue of Linfield Magazine has alternate covers featuring faculty who have been leading Linfield in conversations surrounding technology. One cover features Susan Currie Sivek, associate professor of mass communication and last year's director of the Program for Liberal Arts and Civic Engagement (PLACE). The other features Patrick Cottrell, associate professor of political science, and the current PLACE director. For the past two years, PLACE has explored "The Digital Society" and provided a focal point for Linfield to explore questions such as "Is the Internet good for democracy?" and "How do we distinguish truth from falsehood in a digital age?"
