Launching through the Surf Traveling Exhibit Panel 17: The Project - In the Field

Tyrone Marshall
Linfield College

Brenda DeVore Marshall
Linfield College

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.linfield.edu/dory_exhibit

Part of the Cultural History Commons, Oral History Commons, Speech and Rhetorical Studies Commons, and the Theatre and Performance Studies Commons

Recommended Citation
http://digitalcommons.linfield.edu/dory_exhibit/12

This Exhibit Panel is brought to you for free via open access, courtesy of DigitalCommons@Linfield. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@linfield.edu.
Launching through the Surf: The Dory Fleet of Pacific City

Project Director
Brenda DeVore Marshall

Project Collaborators—Faculty
Janet Gupton
Tyrone Marshall
Jackson Miller
Kathleen Spring

Project Collaborators—Students
Casee Clark
Cassidy Davis
Daphne Dossett
Chris Forrer
Jennifer Layton
Caitlyn Olson
Stephanie Raso
Andrea Snyder
Whitney Weber

Project Assistants—Students
Rhianna Bennett
Mary Beth Jones
Gabrielle Leif
Alicia Schnell

Project Partners
Linfield Department of Theatre and Communication Arts
Linfield Jereld R. Nicholson Library
Linfield Center for the Northwest
Pacific City Arts Association
Pacific City Dorymen’s Association

Launching through the Surf: The Dory Fleet of Pacific City, a collaborative college and community venture, focused on the historical and contemporary role of dory fishers and dories in the life of the coastal village of Pacific City, Oregon. Dory fishermen and women remain an integral part of the traditional lore and contemporary life of the community for residents and tourists alike.

Linfield students and faculty, dorymen and dorywomen, and members of the Pacific City community worked in concert to document the dory story. From conducting oral history interviews and editing stories to learning about dory fishing and enjoying fruits of the catch, the images in this panel illustrate moments of interaction among the individuals involved in the project.