Henberg named interim president

Marvin C. Henberg, vice president for academic affairs and dean of faculty for 11 years, will guide Linfield College during the next several months after being named interim president by the Board of Trustees.

Henberg was appointed in May following a national search. He was not a candidate for the permanent position and will not be a candidate in the ongoing search. Henberg, who replaces retiring president Vivian A. Bull, will serve until a new president takes office sometime in 2006.

“The Board of Trustees is delighted to have a person of Marv Henberg’s caliber and experience lead Linfield College at this time,” said Glenn Kruger ’68, chair of the Board of Trustees, in announcing the appointment. “Dr. Henberg has a thorough understanding of all aspects of Linfield and will provide strong leadership to keep the college moving forward during this period of transition.”

Henberg said he looks forward to this opportunity. “I love Linfield and I am happy to serve while the college identifies a leader who is worthy of following Dr. Bull,” he said. “It is important that we build upon our recent accomplishments and further strengthen our reputation for excellence.”

Henberg has identified five areas that he will focus on in the coming year:

- Bolster the college’s fundraising efforts, with a special emphasis on enhancing faculty development projects and expanding exceptional learning opportunities for students both on and off campus;
- Support efforts to enhance faculty development and improvement opportunities for students both on and off campus;
- Continue planning for new science facilities to meet the growing demand for science classes;
- Promote Linfield’s special qualities to alumni, prospective students and others;
- Keep strong ties to McMinnville, Yamhill County and the state by involvement in local activities and speaking on issues relating to higher education.

Henberg has played a major role in shaping the college’s present direction, including the adoption of a new general education curriculum in 1997. He served as chair of the Planning Council, which has developed a strategic agenda to help set priorities and guide the college’s future growth and financial development.

He has a passion for education that has been the motivation behind his career.

“I deeply believe in the liberating power of education found in the dialogue and discourse of the liberal arts.”

Henberg taught at the University of Idaho from 1976 to 1994. He served as chair of the Department of Philosophy for six years and was the inaugural director of the University of Idaho honors program. He has earned numerous teaching awards throughout his career. He is active in the McMinnville community and is past president of the McMinnville Kiwanis Club. He and his wife, Laurie, are outdoor enthusiasts.

Editor
Mardi Mileham
smileham@linfield.edu
503-883-2498

Assistant Editor
Laura Davis

Graphic Design
Candido Salinas III

Photography
Tom Ballard
William Beckham
Kelly Bird
Denny Brooks

Contributors
Aaron deClerck
Laura Davis
Ryan Gardiner ’97
Mank Mileham
Sol Neelman
Tony Overman ’85
Andrew Shurtleff
Jeremie Hart
Daniel Hurst

On the covers:
Front: Professor Gary Kilgore shows off the deep-water running shoes he helped design and develop. (Tom Ballard photo)
Back: Scenes from Commencement 2005 (Laura Davis, Mardi Mileham photos)

Inside Linfield Magazine
Linfield College faculty are dedicated to teaching young people by engaging and challenging them both inside and outside the classroom. But Linfield faculty are not limited by their professional fields—they sing, play music, and explore topics far beyond their own specialties, thus enhancing their teaching skills. Here we profile five, just a sampling of the talented faculty with whom students interact. We also feature the work of two talented alumni—award-winning photojournalists who share some spectacular photos. You’ll find stories on several students, one who is helping revive her native language, one whose internship brought focus to her career, and another a building company who shares her insight into musical composition. We also say farewell, not just to 480 graduates and five faculty and administrators, but also to President Vivian A. Bull who, in her final columns, reviews the charge students gave at her inauguration.

— Mardi Mileham

Features
6 Perfecting their craft
A look at five faculty whose interests, both within and outside their professions, make them better teachers
14 Bringing music to life
How one composition student puts music to paper and brings it to life through performance
18 Picture perfect, perfect pictures
Two photojournalists share a sampling of their work
24 Saving language from extinction
One student’s quest to save her native language

Departments
4 A View from Melrose
22 ‘Cat Tracks
25 Alumni News
26 Class Notes

Table of Contents