6 NOT JUST BUSINESS AS USUAL

What makes a Linfield business degree distinctive? It is grounded in the liberal arts. That gives graduates a broader understanding of not only business, but of people and other issues that affect how decisions are made.

14 POETRY IN THE DAY-TO-DAY

Shane McCrae '02 received the prestigious 2011 Whiting Writers' Award that recognizes 10 young writers annually for extraordinary talent and promise.

16 VOLUNTEER FINDS VOICE

Elizabeth Guzman '14 found her calling in high school when she helped launch the Youth Advisory Council of the Oregon School-Based Health Care Network.

18 AN OREGON WILDCAT IN ST. ANDREW'S COURT

Kurstin Finch Gnehm '97 found the adventure – and challenge – she was seeking when she took a position at the University of St. Andrews in Scotland.

INSIDE LINFIELD MAGAZINE

Linfield business graduates can be found in a wide array of jobs – accountants, finance directors, bankers, CEOs, attorneys and leaders within nonprofit organizations. In this issue we cover how the liberal arts help prepare business graduates to be successful. You will also find stories on an alumna who followed her dream to live in the U.K., one who is an award-winning poet, and another who serves the Apache Indian nation. You'll meet a student who hopes to improve the health of young people in Oregon and four young women who are helping Linfield students hone their foreign language skills. These are just a few examples of how Linfield alumni are touching lives around the world.
